OLD PARNELL.

He Meets His Match With an American Grizzly.

Parnell, the fighting African lion owned by Col. Boone, has always been considered by sports as the heaviest piece of fighting meat of his weight in the world.

He was matched against the Examiner grizzly, but the authorities would not allow the fight to come off. The Col. finally made the match in Mexico between the lion and a California grizzly.

The grizzly was the heavier of the two and in the combat was sullen, powerful and determined, while the lion, lithe, quick and treacherous, forced the work and was the tactician of the fray. The old monarch of the Sierras proved himself a true American and showed the mountain metal that was in him. He never retreated an inch in the combat and met the rushes of the jungle king with grim determination, and finally threw him clear across the cage against the iron bars with such force that he fell insensible and by all ring rules should have been awarded the fight, for the lion was over ten seconds out of the game and helpless. The bear, with the Californian's love of fair play took no advantage of his fallen foe, and the fight was declared a draw.

Boone once told the writer of the lion's great fight with a Spanish bull at Lama. Boone landed in the city penniless and ran up against an old California gambler. The two laid their heads together, and the gambler induced some of the wealthy native sports to back a fighting, Spanish bull against Parnell. After the match was made Boone saw the bull and pretended he wanted to back out. He crawled so well that the Spaniards were fooled completely and the papers denounced Boone as a quitter and the lion a fraud.

The gambler furnished the money for Boone, who made apparently frantic endeavors to draw it down and declare the match off. But the Lama sports thought they had a dead cinch and refused to let go. Boone's action caused the odds to climb up on the bull and the bets were 20 to 5, when the day arrived for the combat. Then Boone made a last stand that the loser should get 25 per cent of the gate receipts, but the bull's backers insisted that the match was for the whole piece and the loser got nothing.

Over 10,000 people were on hand in the big amphitheatre. The lion was let loose from his cage and seeing the bull pawing the sand about fifty yards away, started for him. He cleared the space in about three bounds. Like a flash he had the bull by the nose and the bull began plowing up the sand with him. Boone saw that Parnell had secured his favorite hold and it was only a question of time when he would suffocate the bull. The spectators however thought the bull was ripping the lion to pieces and the whole audience was on its feet shrieking out: "La Tor! La Tor!" and offering bets of 20 to 1, which the California gambler was picking up. When the excitement was at its highest the bull sank on his side and died. The lion released his hold and springing upon his prostrate foe, lifted his head in air and sent forth a roar that could be heard a mile, and every man and woman in the audience sank back in their seats as if hit with paralysis. Boone called the lion over to him and then took a circle of the amphitheatre, paying their respects to the audience.

Boone and his backers cleaned up $47,000 and gave the bull backers a wine supper, which materially reduced their winnings.

Parnell has been a big bread winner for Boone.

Fair's Sweetheart.

That the New Woman, although not a circus to the eye, nor a picnic to the mind, nor a brass band to the heart, is not altogether a dead-head in the enterprise of existence, but on occasion can at least do something toward depriving death of its terrors, was signally attested by the last moments of Senator Fair. He was not addicted to quotation of Scripture, with which he indeed had but a bowing acquaintance, but when shortly before entering the Shadow he was reminded of his engagement to Miss Phoebe Cousins he smiled a bright wide smile and murmured: "O, grave, where is thy victory? O, death, where is thy sting?" And then, a look of ineffable resignation in his eyes, his face suffused with the light of that Better Land where there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage, he passed away.—Bierce in the Examiner.

It was rumored about town yesterday that two suspected men had been arrested in San Francisco on a charge of being connected with the Mint shortage. The authorities however deny the rumor emphatically.

Nothing New.

People who have been expecting to see some sensational arrests made in the Mint case are still expecting.

Yesterday U. S. District Attorney Jones returned from San Francisco, where he has been on business connected with the Mint shortage. He was closeted with one of the Secret Service Agents for two hours after his arrival. Later in the day he was seen by an APPEAL reporter but all attempt to elicit information regarding the Mint shortage was unavailing.

He said that at the Baldwin Hotel he was besieged by reporters cards. "I always like to meet the newspaper men," said Jones "but in this case my instructions from Washington are so positive that I am obliged to see no one. It is impossible for myself or the detectives to talk on the matter with anyone. When the proper time comes the people will know everything. We are working as hard as we can on the case, but we can not say when the investigation will be completed, what the shortage is and who are the guilty parties. When the time arrives the Government will act quickly in the matter and then every body will know all about it. This is absolutely all that I can tell you about it or any one else."

News from the South.

L. B. Hanchett of Sacramento arrived on the V. & T. last evening and took the west bound train. Mr. Hanchett has just returned from the Silver Peak Mining District and is very much taken with the outlook. He says there is more ore in sight in that district than any camp in the country. A thirty-stamp mill will be built, he having shipped the lumber from Carson yesterday to be used in its construction. He will also order other supplies from below to be shipped out to the Peak immediately.

Star District and Soda Spring are promising camps, so Mr. Hanchett says. The Garfield mill, some six miles from Star District, has been leased and will be run full blast. He has great faith in Southern Nevada and thinks if silver came up to a figure where it ought reasonable to be, the whole southern country will boom.—Journal.

Charged With Embezzlement.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of ex-Governor E. S. Salomon of Washington, a prominent G. A. R. man, who is charged by Mrs. Lydia Virgil with felony and embezzlement. She alleges that Salomon has $1,250 of hers which he collected for her some years ago from Attorney Kowalsky, who acted for her in a real estate deal. Salomon says that Mrs. Virgil has had his note for the amount for some years and that he has paid her more interest than the principal amounts to.

General Solomon was in this city not long ago, and made many friends with the Custer Post, who insist that he will come out all right.

Not Early Enough.

Not long since Hy Downs and Fatty Cohn set some bear traps at Washoe Lake hoping to catch some geese.

One day from the top of the hill they saw a lot of geese in the traps with the aid of a spy glass and hitching up a buckboard started down to get the game. They lost sight of the traps on the way. A little before they reached them they met some Dago's loaded down with game. They suspected the facts, but weren't sure enough to make a fight for them. Reaching the traps they found the geese had been taken from them and all of them carefully reset and baited.

Peace Negotiations.

Washington, April 3.—The Japanese Legation has received official notice by cable that negotiations of the Peace Envoys had been resumed. The renewal indicates that Li Hung Chang is progressing toward recovery. When the Envoys were last in session the main question was as to an armistice, but now that is settled the Envoys must deal with the main question of final terms of peace.
